Free VPN services can be appealing, but there are several important reasons why we recommend avoiding them. First of all, they usually give an inferior experience. With more users than most premium services and fewer servers to spread the load, you can expect slow speeds, random disconnections and in some cases queues or monthly data limits. It's also worth thinking about how a free VPN can afford to operate. Servers are expensive, after all. Since these providers do not charge the user in advance, they need to find other methods to make money. Some free VPNs inject ads on the websites you visit, while others use tracking cookies to keep an eye on you after you disconnect. The resulting user profile can then be sold on to third parties without your knowledge. Unfortunately, we've seen free VPNs abuse users' trust before. Last year, a study showed that 38% of those surveyed included some form of malware. Worse, 20% don't actually encrypt traffic at all. There have also been high-profile cases where these services have lied about the logs they keep, and in one case even sold users' bandwidth for use in botnets. What is the difference between CW TV and CW Seed? Although CW TV and CW Seed are both owned by the same network and in the same way, they are actually different things. CW TV hosts currently airing, teen and young-adult oriented shows, while CW Seed is a great place to find lesser known, digital content, as well as full seasons of shows that are popular but a few years old. Like CW TV, CW Seed is free to use and has apps available for different platforms. While CW Seed used to be available from the CW TV website, the two services have since been separated. Neither page requires users to sign up, making it very easy to get started. Why isn't the CW Seed website loading? Most streaming platforms will at least allow you to browse their website, even you are not placed in the correct area to see anything. In contrast, both CW TV and CW Seed stop loading website partly through if they realize that you are not in the United States, Canada or Mexico. When it comes to geo-restriction measures, this is a rather ineffective solution. To bypass it, all you need to do is connect to one of the VPN's U.S. servers. Since the CONTENT of CW Seed is not state-specific, the server you choose is not important, as long as it is in North America. Once connected, make a hard reload of the webpage by holding the CTRL key and pressing F5 (MacOS users can hold Command and Shift, and then click load again). The site should now be displayed correctly. What can I see on CW Seed? While CW Seed hosts a lot of little-known content, there are a number of high-profile programs available, including many original productions. Below we've listed some of the platform's most popular titles: Constantine Harper's Island Whose Line Is It Anyway? Everyone Hates Chris I Skip That Game
